“ Jim was an elegant dancer; he swirled and twirled Addie (grand daughter) around our kitchen floor, teaching her how to dance to Frank Sinatra before her high school prom. He beamed at Sydney's (grand daughter) artistic prowess demonstrating how to paint perspective into an landscape portrait, and reveled in teaching Mackay (grandson) the perfect grip and swing of a golf club. Gleefully leading Mackay to perch atop our roof smacking golf balls as far as possible. He coaxed our family into hitting tennis balls, shooting pool, sledding down snowy slopes, hitting golf balls at the driving range, and sitting down as a family to soak up a good Steelers game.
