“ Mike was a sweet and gentle soul who lived life on his own terms. He had a wonderful sense of humor about life's inanities. An example of his funny bone involved an encounter he had with a group of Hare Krishnas. They stopped him and asked if he believed in Krishna. Mike said he is not a follower of their religion. They said "Don't worry, faith will come." They said, "Do you believe in eternal life?" Mike said he wasn't sure. They said, "Don't worry belief will come." When they were ready to walk away they asked Mike for a contribution. He said "Don't worry, the money will come."
