“ What I will always remember about Pap is that he he loved life and lived for every single day. When times were tough for him, he always believed in himself and never gave up. He simply loved doing the things he loved to do. He lived life for his passions, his favorite shows, his favorite games, his favorite foods. He may not have been a chatterbox, but he loved to talk, loved to listen, and loved to laugh. I always loved getting the opportunity to make him laugh. His smile and laugh showed how much he appreciated you and your company more than anything else. He truly loved having people around, even if you were just sitting around doing nothing. Like Winnie the Pooh says, doing nothing often leads to the very best something. He was always ready for that very best something. I'm so glad I got to be a part of his life as I grew up as he was such a big part of mine, and I'm going to miss him tremendously. I love you Pap and I am so glad that you are finally able to breathe ❤️
