“ Wanda Graff was a gift to all who knew her. Personally, I always enjoyed her humor and hospitality. I used to drop in on her from time to time just to catch up. Haven't seen her in years, but she is a person I always kept in my heart. To the family -- especially dear friends Woody and Bob -- please accept my deepest sympathy. Love, Chris Geisler Simcic

“ When I was younger my sister (Zoe) and I would stay over granny's house and I have so many amazing memories of those nights. Her letting us eat an absurd amount of party cake ice cream that the doctor said was alright, watching MTV later than I was ever allowed to stay up until I fell asleep sitting upright on one of her recliners, being forced to take home food that none of us wanted which would probably make us sick if we ate it, being called “honey”, trying to decipher what was real and what she was lying about for fun, and just always laughing so incredibly hard. I love every worthless thing you ever gave me Wanda and even though none of it will ever be sold for what you claimed, it's all priceless. I love you.
